Response in Australia

Facilitated by industry technical specialists

Use of OWR processes and resources to reinforce learning objectives

Balanced approach between theory and practical sessions

This course is designed for industry and agency personnel and wildlife specialists involved in preparing for and managing wildlife activities during an oil spill response in Australia; and is built on the Introduction to Oiled Wildlife Response course.

The training will be classroom-based with trainer-led sessions, interactive group components, practical exercises and case studies.

Training sessions include:

- Oiled wildlife response in Australia (including relevant oiled wildlife response legislation)
- Management of responder health and safety
- Wildlife sensitivity management for oiled wildlife response
- Oiled wildlife response personnel, roles and training requirements
- Equipment, resources and oiled wildlife facilities establishment
- Documentation in an oiled wildlife response

This is a competency-based course with practical assessments.
